Restorative Beauty at Your Finger Tips

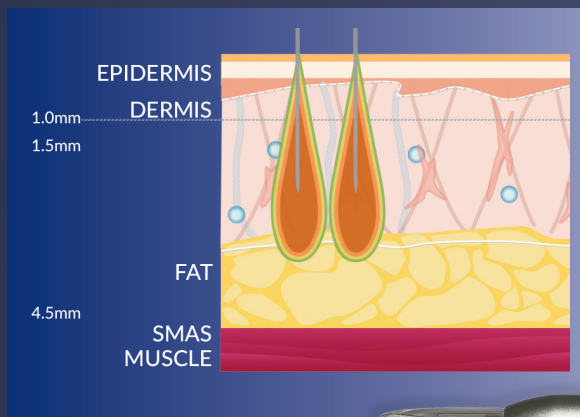

Scarlet SRF performs today's most in-demand face and body aesthetic procedures using advanced fractional radiofrequency microneedling to stimulate collagen production through hemostasis and coagulation. Scarlet SRF treatments help improve the overall appearance of the skin including fine lines and wrinkles, acne scars, striae, and crepiness. This brings a renewed luster to your patient's skin tone and texture, regardless of skin type.

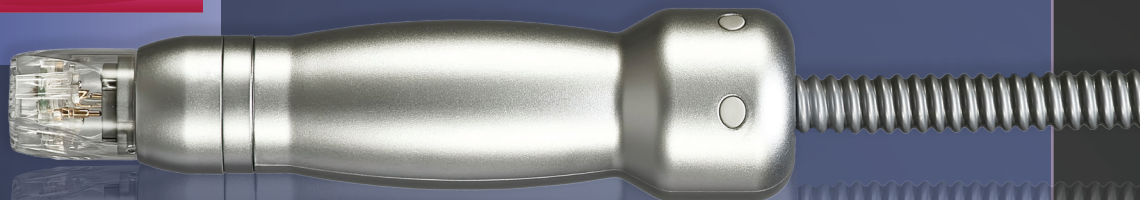

Mechanism of Action

Scarlet SRF's patented single pulse microneedling technology delivers radiofrequency (RF) energy through 25 non-insulated microneedles, creating controlled fractionated micro-injuries in the skin. Scarlet SRF stands out for its exceptional and precise energy deposition, facilitated by its unique design that incorporates an individual electrode around every microneedle. This distinctive arrangement forms a teardrop-shaped micro-injury, effectively engaging the complete dermal layer of the skin.

In addition, the well-studied 300 millisecond pulse duration has been extensively researched and proven effective in depositing the prescribed energy while minimizing potential side effects.

A smooth-running and consistent robotic motor delivers the gold-plated microneedles in a gently controlled motion, providing a well-tolerated patient experience without compromising the speed of treatment.

A Jewel for Your Patients and Your Practice

Deployed for treatment, the Scarlet SRF adjustable microneedles can penetrate from 0.5mm to 3.5mm delivering fractional radiofrequency energy to the cutaneous tissue, at various depths based on the area of concern. As the needles create micro-channels of injury, they trigger a natural wound-healing response, which stimulates new collagen production improving the overall appearance of the skin. Equipped with preset treatment modes for the scalp, face, and body, Scarlet SRF provides an array of treatment choices and promotes ease of operation.

Well-documented positive clinical results, coupled with minimal downtime and discomfort, firmly place Scarlet SRF into the realm of superior aesthetic devices.
